

CULTURE, HISTORY AND ENVIRONMENT, DOCTORAL MINOR

REQUIREMENTS

Requirements:

- ENVIR ST 922 Historical and Cultural Methods in Environmental Research (also known as the "CHE methods seminar")
- 6-credit plan of study.
Each CHE graduate student works with her/his/their CHE faculty advisor to design a tailored plan of study. The plan of study must be relevant to the student's chosen area of focus. The area of focus should be related to human dimensions of an environmental issue. Examples of areas of focus include (but are certainly not limited to): posthumanism and the human-wildlife interface; critical engagements with conservation science; feminist political ecology and/or ecofeminisms; history of indigenous landscapes and cultures in Central America; environmental justice and Latinx, Black, and/or other minoritized communities in the US; food insecurity and sovereignty; the literature and/or art of polluted spaces.
- Average GPA for coursework must be 3.00 or higher.
