This program does not normally admit students for the Spring term. Students should apply for Fall admission unless instructed otherwise by the program.

Students who are admitted to the department must meet the Graduate School requirements, including completion of a bachelor's degree which typically consists of courses in biology, chemistry, mathematics, and physics. Successful applicants typically exceed the minimum requirement of a 3.0 GPA (on a 4.0 scale); exceed the minimum required Test of English as a Foreign Language (iTOEFL) score of 92, or a 7 on the International English Language Testing System (IELTS) exam (international applicants); and articulate a strong interest in the discipline in their application. Prior research experience is an asset for any applicant, and letters of recommendation from research advisors are viewed as one of the most useful means of evaluating applications.

The application deadline for the fall semester is the preceding December 1. Applications received after that date will be reviewed, but they are disadvantaged for admission and financial support.

Additional information can be found on the department's application process webpage (https://plantpath.wisc.edu/application-process/).

A completed admission application acts as the application for financial support. Offers of financial support accompany offers of admission for students admitted to Plant Pathology. Most students hold research assistantships (RAs).
