Letters of Recommendation Required	3

Applicants with diverse academic backgrounds are welcomed to apply. Those with strong academic preparation in the biological/medical sciences, quantitative analysis, and/or population health related social sciences are strongly encouraged to apply. Historically, many applicants who have succeeded in our program have come to the program with backgrounds in fields as diverse as microbiology, genetics, nutritional sciences, medicine, nursing, pharmacy, veterinary medicine, environmental sciences, political sciences, business, sociology, education, engineering, psychology, and economics.

Applicants are admitted to the fall semester of each school year. Applications are due by the fall deadline. Late applications are not accepted.

APPLICATION MATERIALS

Minimum requirements are:

1. Applicants must fulfill all Graduate School requirements.
2. Applicants must have an undergraduate degree with a grade point average of 3.0 (on a 4.0 scale). Successful applicants generally have GPAs well above 3.0.
3. International degree-seeking applicants must prove English proficiency using the Graduate School's requirements (<https://grad.wisc.edu/apply/requirements/>).
4. At least one semester of advanced quantitative preparation (calculus is strongly preferred) with a grade of B or better.
5. A personal statement is required.
6. Three letters of recommendation are to be submitted electronically.

PROGRAM INFORMATION

Admitted applicants are matched with a faculty advisor. Faculty advisors help hone interests, assist with identifying research projects, provide support for career development, and link admitted applicants to the greater campus community. Admitted applicants have the benefit of regular dialogues with faculty members. Seminars and integrated discussion groups allow for increased interaction with core faculty and community lecturers. Finally, the work of admitted applicants is valued as evidenced by their entries in the annual department poster session, participation in public health symposia, authorship of publications, and involvement in community/research projects.
